Pronounced Pernicious Anemia.

A physician practicing near London, Eng., reports: "I have pleasure in stating that the exhibition of Pepto-Mangan (Gude) was attended with very good results. The case is one of pronounced pernicious anemia, in a man of 67 who had marked intolerance of arsenic, which, in minute doses, caused gastric irritation and had to be abandoned. The patient has continued the use of Pepto-Mangan (Gude), obtaining it from stores in the city."
