Diagnosis of Hyperthyroidism.

Elevation of temperature found an early symptom in many cases, especially mild ones. When, in absence of acute or other tangible disease, there have been loss of weight and augmented nitrogen and phosphoric acid excretion, and when, after administration of a thyroid or iodine preparation, there occur the characteristic psychoneurotic and cardiac symptoms of excessive thyroid activity, elevation of temperature is a thyrotoxic phenomenon.—Stern; Univ. Med. Journ.

Alita and I went for elderberries on the Beech farm then after dinner Alita, Mellad & John went to Cayliner. Then when Alita came home Alita went to the north place for Eugery. After tea
I went to Cayliner Eug
It was very in his ear
