

March 9th 1892.

Wed. 9. very foggy this morning a light flurry of snow, clearing off, partly, cloudy and cold in the afternoon, light flurry of snow during the night.

Thu. 10. Mild, but partly cloudy sun shining at intervals, commenced snowing about 3 o'clock, quite a Blizzard just now, (evening). ~~little later~~

Fri. 11. Last night's storm was one of the fiercest of the season from the west, piling the snow in huge banks, very little travel to-day, heavy gales during the forenoon subsiding about 3 o'clock, quite pleasant the balance of the day.

Sat. 12. Snowing during the forenoon clearing off, turning cold, wrote to L. W. Murphy Kingston for cheese factory, and

March 13th 1892.

Sun. 13. Extremely cold for March, but lovely day, bright and clear, 10° below zero.

Mon. 14. Very cold and windy drifting ~~away~~ all day, the worst storm and roads experienced for a number of years. 10° below zero. (bright)

Tue. 15. Cold and clear, quite windy roads almost impassable 10° below zero.

Wed. 16. Beautiful day, bright and clear, thawing a little this afternoon, but 18° below zero this morning.

Thu. 17. Bright and mild day turning a little colder, and cloudy about 3 o'clock.

Fri. 18. Quite mild, snowing all day, from the east, wrote to Robt. Foy, Bellville for V.T.