Surgical Hints.

In cases of intestinal obstruction never omit a thorough examination for the possible presence of hernia. Unless this is done, small ruptures of which the patient was entirely unaware may be overlooked.

A good anesthetic mixture for local anesthesia, as in incision of the drum membrane in otitis media, consists of equal parts of cocain, carbolic acid and menthol. This has been found very satisfactory by Dr. E. C. Ellett.—Int. Journ. of Surg.
