

great-deal of persuasion we reached Armer or rather Dunscombe. The roads are lovely being smooth coral. a great many hedges of oleander are to be seen and in many places stone walls covered with Lantana.
The most noted things on the way to East-Warwick are the three Royal palaces in Paget.
A number of mangroves grow in the bay and present a peculiar appearance.
We remained at Dunscombe for supper. The household consist of Mr & Mrs Armer & 5-children, 2 Mrs Dunscombe and Isabel Dunscombe a cousin, also Mr Dunscombe Mrs Armer's brother. After supper we found that our little donkey was very anxious to start for home and from the way in which he started off we might be forgiven if we expected to go home at a good pace.
Our hopes however were doomed to be disappointed and our donkey was got down to a walk. I was compelled to hold up a carriage lamp all the way home on account of a law which was enacted on the Island that all vehicles of travel must
