

I went up town with Aunty Alice & Mary. Aunty Alice went over to Cal. Smiths to buy bridge. I went down to the Coak, for a few minutes. Young Doc. is in bed with a cold. From here I went to the Manns, and took Oliver a couple of books from Aunty. I had arranged to meet him to go anyway to Chart him. I chartered him although it wasn't very satisfactory as Nanny & young Reed were there. I went to band practice from there and after band practice which lasted till after 10.30 I went over to the Smiths to call on Aunty Alice as I had promised. We had coffee & cake after I got there so it was pretty late when we got back to Aunty's where Mary was waiting for me and quite late when Mary & I eventually got home, and she was pretty well tired out.

Tues day December 6th

This was election day and I didn't vote. None of us in this house had. I was rather undecided about it but as the roads are so fierce and I was sure of losing my vote anyway I was busy all day doing chores I didn't feel much like going out to Wiggins just to be my vote. I went down to the mill this morning and got some more heavy chop for the pigs and some of Charlie Dineys new patent John S. Martin poultry mask. Mary went down town this afternoon and I walked over as far as Martin's with her but didn't see anyone but Elsie as I think they were all down voting. Dad went down to see Aunty & Aunty Alice to night but I didn't go down. I saw Jack Martin who told him that Wallace had beaten Sutton by about 500 which wasn't as big a majority as his friends predicted. South Norfolk went fairly well Conservative and all the municipalities except Waterford gave Sutton a majority. Charlottetown was the only townships that didn't vote U. F. O. The Conservatives got a bad beating in the house. Meighen himself and about half his cabinet were defeated and they only have about 50 seats left, five of the provinces not having a single Conservative seat in Quebec and Nova Scotia went solid Liberal so that King will have to form the next Government he having about 118 seats & Creaser 64 - Too Bad.
