Artificial Respiration.

Schafer's method is performed as follows: Place the patient prone on the ground, with the face turned to one side and the hands resting, palms down, beside the head. Now squat or kneel beside the patient or astraddle the waist, looking toward his head. Place your palms on the lowest ribs and press down by swaying your weight forward for three seconds. Now release the pressure and rest for two seconds. Repeat the manipulation at this rate as long as may be necessary.—Med. Review.
