

THURSDAY, APRIL 11, 1872.

Cool cloudy weather no spring as yet,
Feb. 23^d 1872

planned for a severe winter's study & tuition, Nellie was most anxious for this, as she had been constantly at school was getting ahead in all the points of technical education. Miss Nellie has gone where all problems are already solved - and we in our grief have been for two months looking after instead of before us. As yet I have been totally unable to aid any of them, and a mamma again has fallen the burden of guidance as of yore -

Had a letter this week from Archibald Cameron, my old school fellow, soliciting subscriptions for a testimonial to Duncan Campbell an teacher of 36 years ago!

Friday Feb. 28th

Lizzie Smith died this morning she has ^{been} sickly all season and it was not unlooked for -

Had a visit from Dr. Evans today hoping it will be the last, am waiting for a fine day to go out if possible
