

February 13th 1892

Sat. 13. Very brilliant northern lights to night. So red and beautiful their reflection on the snow made it appear coloured.

Sun. 14. Cloudy and cold. commenced storming about 3 o'clock P.M. from the east severest of the season eclipsing all previous storms, and still storming at nine P.M. Alfred Brown's wife here to-day, and brought Ida home with them, after a visit of about three weeks. Alfred and Nancy stay tonight on account of the storm.

Mon. 15. Cold, but beautiful day, yesterday's snow storm was about 7.8 inches.

Tue. 16. Very cold day, 20° below zero, but bright lovely day.

Wed. 17. Bright and lovely day, 28° below zero this morning.

February 18th 1892.

Thu. 18. Quite mild in the morning, sun shining for a while then dull and cloudy, sun shining a little while at sunset. Jack dealt for Stallion.

Fri. 19. Dull and cloudy, commenced storming about 3 o'clock P.M. from the east.

Sat. 20. About ~~an~~<sup>3</sup> inches of snow fell during the night previous, dull and cloudy to-day, wind east accompanied by a light mist, almost rain.

Sun. 21. Warm, dull and cloudy, misty tonight.

Mon. 22. Beautiful day, snow melting fast.

Tue. 23. Another lovely day, snow going fast.

Wed. 24. Still another fine day, as the two done.

Thu. 25. Beautiful bright warm day, thawing.

Fri. 26. Bright and warm in the forenoon.

turning colder about 3 o'clock P.M.

heavy gale kept up all night, from the north east very cold about midnight, grand northern lights illuminating the ~~whole~~<sup>whole</sup> heavens,