

The boys have both been ploughing in the hilly field by the drive - base today.

I have been engaged as usual at trimming apple trees. Do not seem to make much headway however.

There being so many other things requiring attention.

The weather has become quite cool again. There is apparently, a storm brewing.

I notice that in the fishery dispute Great Britain sustains Canada, in her view to the detriment of the United States. Hope that this circumstance will hasten a settlement.

Mrs. and Joe. have both been ploughing in the same field as yesterday. Am thankful that they have got the field nearly ploughed.

I have been ditching in the back fields this afternoon. Did not do much this forenoon the weather being so stormy and cold outside.

Am reading a new book, "Simon Holmes" by J. Jackson Ward which is quite profitable and pleasant reading. Simon Holmes is a fine character; and one well worthy of emulation. Some fine lessons are taught.
