The Early Recognition of Cancer.

CARCINOMA OF THE TONGUE. Small wart-like formations or fissures with indurated margins on the upper or lower surface of the tongue in a person of middle age are very suggestive of malignancy and the same suspicion should arise on the occurrence of white patches, leukoplakia. Very characteristic symptoms of cancer of the tongue are decreased mobility accompanied by difficulty in deglutition and embarrassment in speech and severe lancinating pain. All these symptoms occur early in the disease. This is the stage where surgery is effective.—Levin; Archives of Diagnosis.
