Practical Points in Infant Feeding—No. 2.

Habitual colic is nearly always from an excess of proteins. For such a condition one should not give more than one-third as much proteins as fat, and usually at first very low percentages. This condition is usually associated with the presence of curds in the stools, which requires the same treatment.—Pediatrics.

Blue sky & snowing off on all day. Girls went down to Mr. Leavelle's for dinner. They took the girls up to Mrs. Davenport's & they all had a turn out of the cutter in the snow. The Davenport boy was killed by a train & they bring to him home last night. I have only seen one tug pass to day besides Dr. Augustin's form was down to Clarence Lopes
