When I went out in the kitchen this morning I saw that the poor flauts had caught it. They were frozen stiff. I went out as soon as I had the fires going well and fed everything. Frank said he thought he felt a little better and would get up as soon as it got a little warmer. He has been better today. Walked over as far as Jack Martin's to get the roosters. But Jack did not have them ready and said to come at 3 O'Clock, so I went over and got a couple. It is not so cold tonight but cold enough.

Tuesday, January 16th

Nothing much to report today. Frank felt much better and did quite a lot of the chores. I went down home this morning for a few minutes. Mr. Quaburg was over this afternoon and Lloyd Ryerse was here this evening. It has been cold all day and is cold tonight. They are cutting ice. We will have to get our ice boxes ready.
