

Friday June 9th

Was not so sleepy this morning and have felt better all day.

Last night after I went to bed ~~skinning~~ Rysie and Lorne ~~started~~ came over with Agalkner's team to get his wagon to haul some timber out of the brush to day so as we only had the one wagon. Daddy came out and helped spread and Bill hauled out.

After breakfast I sewed up all the pieces of wood in the wood shed I could find and then went over to Blahie's to borrow a scoop-shovel for Bill and after lugging it over here he said it was no good and he would not use it but he changed his mind later when he found there was no better. Then I watched Dad try to churn in a two-quart self-feeder. He churned to lots of cream but the butter was pretty soft. Enah worked it up this afternoon.

and we had it for tea, and it was pretty good.

We went out about ten o'clock and spread manure till noon and after dinner till four when it began to rain.

It rained till six, during which time we cleaned up the wood shed and now it looks as slick as the inside of a walnut when the meat is all out.

After tea I milked Babbie and Mr. Chand came after Daddy to see a sick lame horse (Dad has quit the practice). I then fed the pigs and tried to feed the pitters but they spilled all the milk by trying to get what was on the opposite side of the saucer, consequently it was necessary for them to crawl in it. Bill went off with the rifle after tea. The cam is coming up nicely and the crows are right on the spot. We have about 100 loads of manure out now.
