Monday June 15th

Craig Long came over before breakfast this morning to see Dad about I weep more. She was down and in pain and he didn't know what ailed her, so Dad went over right after breakfast to see her. She had the colic and he told them to send for Bart if she did not show any symptoms of improvement. but she was better in a short time. Dad went from there down to Martins and I came down with Joe and the cart as soon as I had breakfast and got two bushels of potatoes for seed. They are very small so we will exchange the same amount of them for the ones of Preston's that are left in the cellar. Frank went over to Preston's before school and found out that he could get a couple of bushels there so I went right down there and got them as soon as I got home from Martins. I then shelled enough seed corn to finish planting and went out and finished Dad went out and furrowed out the potato patch. After dinner we did up the chores and hooked Harry and Belle to the wagon and went down town to get some provisions and a pile of sand for Tiddums to play in. Hubby has been agitating that move for quite awhile. He wants a pile on each side of the wood shed so Tiddums can always

We saw Hubby down at Muel Wards, having a great time. He had three or four spids which he said were the best in town and they had all their tomatoes set out and waiting for more and a lot of potatoes planted. Chris said that they found Martin's dog but he was dead down at Sovereign's. Charlie Martin had told Mr. Flemming to shoot at it if it came around this place so Mr. Flemming did just to scare it. He didn't know he had killed it till they found it. She felt very badly about but Jack felt worse. He wouldn't have taken fifty dollars for it. They say poor old Jimmy Larose has been sent down for eighteen months for forging a check book, but they

Tuesday June 16th

I went over to Martins first thing this morning and sold my eggs and got some scratch feed for the little fellows. I hadn't been home very long when Billy Louis came in with Supper's team and fancy buggy and the news that Supper wanted a couple of men for a couple of hours. so as Dad felt pretty miserable he said for Hubby and me to go. Hubby jumped at the chance of a ride in such a carriage and would have climbed over the back of the
