Diet and Cancer.

Cancer has increased enormously as diet has become more luxurious, especially in the eating of meat. It is stated that mice living on a rice diet cannot be inoculated with cancer, while those placed on a diet of meat easily fall victims. He treats both primary and recurrent cancer with a vegetarian diet with gratifying results and believes that the excessive use of meat produces cancer in some cases. He advocates the cooking of potatoes in their skins to retain the potash and other salts which otherwise escape into the water. He also gives acetate of potassium to supply the element of potash.—Bulkley; Med. Record.
