it and the second one unloaded so we were only able to get three loads hauled but the last one we unloaded in short time as it was on the second tier in the ice and there was no frozen sawdust at the edge to bind it. It was blustery this morning but has been getting milder all day and has been cloudy and almost raining. I started to walk home to-night as I was afraid I could not get in the lane with the cutter it was drifting so badly this morning. I got a ride home with the Tom Stones. Ded doesn't feel much better.

Sunday February 7th

We were very late getting up this morning so as usual we didn't have any mid-day meal. I did up the chores and swept out the school house and about half past two we packed Gay & the baby in the hand sleigh that the Cornishs gave us and went over to the Lamp Bins. I pushed the sleigh and Mary and Harry B. walked. I left them there and went on over to Irene Walkers and got the milk then came back to the Lamp Bins. We came home about five in time for me to do up the chores before dark. It turned colder but has been a nice day, with rather west breeze

Monday February 8th

I started to walk over home this morning but got a ride part way with Billy Mason. Frank had gone down after his first load of ice when I got there and he got me more before dinner. Druit came over to help us. I went down town right after dinner as I had to go to the dentists this afternoon but Druit & Frank got two more loads in and only need one more to fill the ice house. The dentist filled another tooth for me and changed the filling in the first one. He decided it was the one that was making my face swell and says it may have to come out yet. I drove Druit home to-night and got in by driving over the wheat and missing the lane. I am to take Harry B down to-morrow to visit Aunty & Aunty Alice for a day or two. Mabel was over here when I got home getting Mary to show her how to make valentines. Miss Morgan died early yesterday morning and is to be buried at ten o'clock to-morrow morning. Walker Waddle is to be buried in the afternoon. He died Saturday. East wind, fairly cold but nice day.

Tuesday February 9th

Harry B and I drove over to the farm this morning in spite of a rather nasty east wind & snow storm. We didn't get there very early, and Frank & Druit were
