

The trains were very crowded but we managed to get seats at last. Every body for the way was talking rapidly and there was a talk in the car. I did not seem very sick but I was a little nervous about it.

Thursday September 7th
Daddy got me up, about five o'clock and we did the chores. Then we hurried for all we were worth through breakfast and down to the train. We thought we were going to miss it but when we got there we waited about five or ten minutes before she started. We arrived at the Exhibition grounds about 10 or 11 and were on the dead-end about, all day ^{at 3.30 P.M.} and then did not see nearly all the stuff. But what we did see was great. In Midway had a very fine exhibit of crates, chests and wardrobes. There was a very large number of cattle on show. We got home about half past nine and were about frozen. It rained quite hard here and it is so they tell us. Nanny was to have come over here and milked but she did not get over till after six and Dick had the cows near the milk house.

About one o'clock Paul Lee or Quaker had quite a lot of the way as we were pulling each other out of the wagon all the way. I met Bryant and got a stronger seat. I got out of my feet all day.

Friday September 8th
Got up fairly early and I worked around the house chaffing wood till noon. Went over a little before to see if we could get Mrs. Nye's sick this afternoon. Dad wanted to get it this morning but Nye was not through with it. After dinner I waited around till Dad took Harry & Bill over and got the disk and then went back with him and dishes on the ^{calyx} ^{top} ~~oat~~ stubble all the afternoon. We had Joe & Linger on the barrows. Paul Lee Woodson came over about six and helped us put the box on the wagon. After tea Dad ^{5 P.M.} hooked up the little team to the wagon and drove down to the Warden while Frank & I got fixed up. He was soon back and the whole bunch of us drove out to the Shands. We had a great time. Paul Lee Dick, Charlie Shand & I played games out in another room & out side (full room) while Miss Robinson & Miss Drayton entertained the bunch in the other room. We got home
