

Owing to a shower of rain this morning and also this evening we did not get to church. It seems almost too far to go in the rain both for the horses and ourselves. I have been enjoying the day at home however as well as we could. It seems such a change from the usual routine of the week that one can scarcely accommodate themselves to it. When I sit down to read I soon find myself asleep. But, the Lord has blessed me with His presence & some precious moments communion with Him.

Have been ~~been~~ graciously blessed with a beautiful rain yesterday and today. This forenoon in particular, a heavy rain has fallen.

My men have been digging the cellar under the little tenant house today. Finding that the frost had spoiled our wall and crumbled the cellar badly where there was no wall as well. I made a lounge for the fields this forenoon and this afternoon have been off after scrapes and to see about getting some more stone for cellar &c.
