

The boys and I finished husking corn west of doors this morning. Got the remainder of corn-stalks drawn also. This afternoon the boys have drawn in the east end of husked corn from the Big Flat.

Look Mrs. Nyman home this afternoon and this evening and I drove down to Mr. John Mucken where we had tea. Went with them afterwards to the Grange Social in the new Grange Hall. Heard an address by the Master of Hamilton Grange. Mr. Moffat had a pleasant time.

Was killed and dazed by Colt this morning. The boys and I, after looking for and finding hands for threshing this afternoon and to-morrow I went out to Dover to take the hide and to look after some other business. Got home in time to help them a while before night. The Evans' Machine being here. Joe allowed me to see Lewis to run away this afternoon breaking the waggon badly, but otherwise not doing much damage, fortunately.
