

MONDAY, APRIL 18, 1870.

It has been raining to day so that we could not do much. The boy and I went to Jarvis this forenoon. This afternoon he worked with Charles cleaning up oak.
Cousin George is to start for the Hamilton St. P. College tomorrow morning.

There seems to be something so mysterious in the present position of that matter which has been so consolated by a subject of prayer with me for the past few years. And although it does seem to be more undoubtedly than ever before to be brought to Jesus, yet strange to say when I take the matter to the Lord He invariably gives me the witness of my acceptance, and the repeated assurance that His great and true promises shall be fulfilled.

TUESDAY, APRIL 19, 1870.

The boys have been fixing up Jesse most of the past day.
Willbur and I went out to Dover towards noon and took road I scarce ly ever saw in all my life.

I was in to Bro. Cramer this afternoon. While there I had a little conversation with him about that matter which I mentioned last night. For some little time I have desired to open my heart to him in this matter. After all I could not desire much benefit from the interview. It seemed so hard to express my whole mind. He that I could understand me. O, how thankful I am that it is not as when I go to God.
