

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1870.

My mother and I went out to the Post this morning. I heard Mrs. Eemans. I took dinner at Mrs. Hall's. I attended the Baptist Church this afternoon when I heard Mr. Cox one of the Georgian Students. He preached from the Conversion of Paul. I took tea at Mr. Scott's. Had a very pleasant hour with them, more especially with Marie. Attended a meeting again to-night. Mrs. Eemans preached from the 5th of Paulus. His sermon was delightful and full of the spirit of truth.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1870.

Charley is ploughing now. Still and I picked apples this forenoon and this afternoon we worked at the Clovershed. Got in one load although it was not fit to draw in. Took up a hive of bees to night. Had C. M. S. to help me.

With reference to the blessing which my Lord has so long desired of me asking God to take away every vestige of the desire for it, unless it should after all be His will, in the latter case not that it may become even more than ever the desire of my heart.
