Treatment of Acute Articular Rheumatism.

Streptococcus pyogenes vaccine used in 6 cases, in 4 of which no salicylates were given, with good results. Temperature quickly fell in every case, pain ceased, and inflammatory phenomena disappeared. Stock vaccine from several strains of streptococcus was used in these cases, but author thinks it preferable to employ a mixed streptococcus and staphylococcus (aureus and albus) vaccine.—Wolverton.
