

the temperature and it was very strong and from the west I worked with a coat on all day and was not too warm. This morning we shocked up the rest of the oats which were still pretty wet except where the wind & sun had hit them. It was nearly eleven when we got through with them but we put off the load of hay that was on the barn floor and got a load in before dinner which was about one o'clock. This afternoon we finished hauling the hay in three pretty good sized loads. The baby came out and rode in on the last load the promise of which has kept him out of the field for the past week or two. Frank went down <sup>night</sup> town

Sunday August 26th

Frank and I drove down to church this morning. Frank walked down. Aunty Alice came over with us for dinner. She walked back soon after dinner and Dad, Frank and the baby went for a drive down the lake shore and wound up at Aunty's where they stayed to tea. I read, slept and wrote to Dick this afternoon and Frank fixed his wheel and visited with Lloyd Ryerson most of the afternoon and then went back to Ben Inge's gully prospecting for better nuts and sent the cows up.
