364 TO COME

April 26, 1907.

Dr. E. E. Sweeney, Kansas City, Mo., says:

"I find after a thorough trial of Pepto-Mangan in a marked case of Chlorosis, that it is a sheet anchor to the physician who uses it. I feel that in all cases of disease where there has been great impoverishment of the blood, one may rely with perfect assurance on Pepto-Mangan (Gude) to restore the blood to its physiological condition, and I trust that Pepto-Mangan (Gude) may become a solace to every physician in the treatment of diseases of malnutrition."

A fine day
