Diagnosis of Typhoid Fever.

Russo's test found a valuable diagnostic aid in early cases. To 4 or 5 c.c. of patient's urine add 4 drops of 0.1 per cent. aqueous solution of methylene blue. After thorough admixture examine against light; a mint- or emerald-green color is positive, whereas any bluish tint renders test negative. Urines containing bile also give the test; therefore, this must first be excluded.—Rolph and Nelson.
