

Causes of Infantile Convulsions.

Central.

1. Diseases of high temperature: Insolation, meningitis, the exanthemata, pneumonia, and others.
2. Diseases accompanied by vascular stasis: (Pertussis, cardiac diseases, tumors, hydrocephalus).
3. Diseases characterized by anemia and exhaustion: (Loss of blood, diarrhea).
4. Various toxic causes, such as drugs or uremia: (Belladonna, nephritis).
5. Organic central lesions: (Cerebral paralysis, or any other lesions of the brain).
6. Presumably organic disturbance of the brain: (Epilepsy).

Peripheral (Reflex).

- Rachitis.
- Food.
- Intestinal parasites.
- Dental irritation.
- Foreign bodies in the ear and nose.
- Hot baths.
- Mental disturbances, such as fright and numerous other causes.—Rotch; Philadelphia Polyclinic.

What's in a Name?

A physician recently opened an office in Chicago, and upon his sign appears the following incongruous announcement:

“MICHAEL MALONEY,
Deutscher Arzt.”