

May 11th 1892.

Wed. 11.

Rainy, commenced in the night previous, and continued till about one. O'clock. P.M. cloudy and foggy the remainder of the day. This rain was received very warmly by the farmers, as there has been little rain of any account this spring.

It is a lovely growing day very warm. This is nature's first appearance of spring loveliness.

Thu 12.

Dull and cloudy, but a warm rained a little during the day, closing off at night.

sun going down clear bidding a fair day tomorrow

Had a racket with a patron (Mr Day) about the weight of his milk, but he was only joking fixed up my room to night

May 13th 1892.

Fri. 13.

Beautiful in the extreme all day, fine and warm after the rain, vegetation rapidly developing, nature presents a most magnificent appearance, a gentle west wind blowing.

Called on Mrs Cowan and spent a very pleasant evening. The School Teacher's sister was there and altogether we had a lovely time

Sat. 14.

Another beautiful day, wind mostly East, being with it a heavy cloud which resulted in rain at an early hour this morning, and occasional dashes up till noon, then having the appearance of clearing off. Latter sun appearing in the afternoon then another dash, still cloudy attended Sunday School

Sun. 15.

This is meant for Sunday