

Lewis has been working away at the new cow-stable again to day, almost most of the time, however. After getting him started this morning I went out to horse after some necessities.

Our bay mare still was served with Robert Justice horse. Thought of trying to raise a winter colt.

Bro. Ellis' factory is progressing finely for this season of the year. It seems likely that the whole frame of main building will be up this week.

Our work does not vary much of late, it seems to take so long to get our cow-stables done. Have worked at it to day as usual.

The weather keeps remarkably mild and even warm. It freezes some nights but day time shows few signs.

We have been making sausage this evening. The sausage cutter did not work very well and it took us till nearly twelve o'clock to get through.
