"Don'ts" in Appendicitis. No. 3.

5. Do not rely on Blumberg's sign alone (pressing the hand over McBurney's point and lifting the hand up suddenly; the return of the wall will give rise to a short acute pain). It is present in all cases of peritoneal inflammation.

6. Do not treat medicinally if Blumberg's sign is present. You are dealing with a peritonitis.

7. Do nothing that will interfere with the integrity of the skin, hence make no application of mustard, oil of turpentine, or hot water.—Chideckel; Med. Record.
