43 TO COME

Corneal Ulcers.

These are at times very difficult to distinguish from opacities, but a diagnosis of the true condition may easily be made by employing a solution of fluorescein, 10 grains to the ounce of water, combined with biborate of sodium, 20 grains to the ounce. If the epithelium has been removed, a bright green color will appear at the affected spot, whereas the opacity remains unaffected.—Clinical Memoranda; Brand & Keith.
