

1920

February 21 (Saturday) Worked for Charles until about 12:30. Practised an hour. Did my darnung. Went down to public library in the afternoon and did some work for Mrs. Ferguson. Then went on down town to get some things for Dorothy's box of lads. Wrote a note to Clara re her bank deposits - bonuses etc. Fine day - thawing some places in the sun. Wrote to Miss Small & Lieve Frazer.

February 22 (Sunday) No church or Sunday school. Seemed a very long day. Beautiful sunshiny day with a little feeling of spring in the air. I read "The Last Hope" by H. Schen, Merriman. Went out and shovelled snow from outside sidewalk. Was out an hour and a half altogether. Charles had neuralgia in his head again after 2 p.m. I hope it may soon be better. Charlie and Alice were up in the evening. They had walked around a five mile block in the afternoon. (Had the 6 children with them) Charlie is going to dinner in the morning. Wrote to John Hewitt and his mother.
