

in the bottom of the hole and mixed the earth up with mould from around the big barn and some wood ashes Dad. Slaughtered the fields were around the Martin's fence firing it and I was over talking to them for awhile.
It has been another most beautiful Indian summer day.

Saturday November 27th

Dad. left here at seven o'clock this morning to get Shirley and go down to Mrs. Faurey's funeral. he didn't get back till nearly ten. he got some lime down town and Frank white washed the cow stable. This afternoon they got a grist ready for the mill and Frank took it down but it was too late to get it to night. I did chores and went over to Martin's to find out how strong to make the solution of coal oil and carbolic acid for scaly leg. Bridely said gersanium would do as well as carbolic acid and not to use more than a table spoon full in a cup of water so night Dad. and I went through them we got all the young pullets & cockles done but not all the old laying hens so they were 2. This we couldn't tell which had been done and which hadn't. It has been a very disagreeable day. It rained.
This morning and has been cold and windy.

Sunday November 28th

Frank and I went down to church this morning.
Frank rode the wheel down and we drove. I was down town all the afternoon and went up the beach for a walk and stayed down at Aunt's for tea. Dad. walked down and he Aunt and I went up to church to night. and I spent the evening up at the Bagley's. It has been a most beautiful and very mild day but it was a wild night when I started for home raining and a terrific wind so I went down and stayed all night at Aunt's. They had all gone to bed when I got there but I sneaked in and lit the light and then went up and told Aunt I was there. she was glad to see me.

Monday November 29th

I had breakfast down at Aunt's this morning and got home at nine o'clock. I then went down to the mill and got the grist that Frank left there on Saturday. I took a bag of wheat down and Clarence said it ought to be worth about .90 cts but by to day's paper Ottawa has commandeered a lot of Canadian wheat so whether that will affect prices here or not I don't know. This afternoon I did
