Vaginal Sterilization.

Painting with iodine as a means of sterilization of the skin prior to operation has now become a regular procedure. This same method is now applied successfully to the vagina prior to vaginal operations. By the aid of two specula the vaginal walls are held apart and thoroughly swabbed with ether, and then with tincture of iodine. The cervix is included in the operation. Care must be taken not to leave any iodine in the vagina. The results are said to be much superior to the ordinary methods of douching.—Med. Review of Reviews.
