DIARIES OF MARY ELLEN AWREY

This is the transcription of diaries kept by my mother when she was a young girl. She was born on the family farm in Erin township on September 13, 1893, to Ellen (Irvin) and Edwin Awrey. She was named Mary Ellen but was called Nell. In later years she was Nellie to her friends however I never heard my father call her anything but Nell.

Mother was the fourth child born into the family but the second child, Annie, having died at age, two, mother became the third oldest with her brother Wilbert (1886) the oldest and her sister Ethel (1891) the second oldest. Three more children were born into the family, Myrtle (1895), Ivy (c1897) and Clifford who also died in infancy.

My grandfather Edwin Awrey died very suddenly, within about a week of having taken sick. I think it was meningitis, inflammation of the brain as they called it. This happened in 1905 when he was 46 years old. Mother was 12 years old and her brother Wilbert 19 years old and able to take over the running of the farm when their father died.

My grandmother, widowed and with a family to care for, probably stayed on the farm until Wilbert was getting ready to marry in 1912.

From mother's 1910 diary I discovered that it was October 17, 1909 when she came to live with her Aunt Harriet (Irvin) and her husband, Dr. Allan Gibson, in Hillsburgh, (she remarked on the first anniversary of the day). Gibson's had no children and the feeling in mother's diaries is that she was quite like a daughter to them, and they like a second set of parents to her.

The three diaries here transcribed, were all written while she lived there with Gibsons in "the Burg".

A FEW NOTES REGARDING HOW TO READ THIS TRANSCRIPTION

Like many diaryists, mother didn't use proper sentence construction or punctuation. You just have to become accustomed to this style of writing perhaps reading an entry over again to get the right meaning. For example this entry, written without a break, actually contains in essence, seven sentences:

Beautiful day was at church this A.M. then went with Dr. for a drive this P.M. Linole Somerville and wife & Kate McM were here for tea went to church to-night Miss McDonald spoke after church went for a walk with Mr. Cullen it is a fine night.

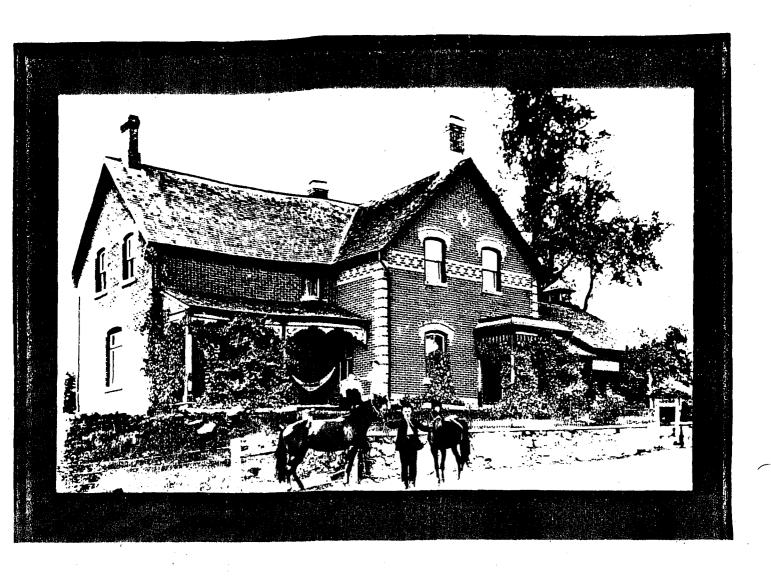

I think "this P.M." belongs with "a drive" and "after church" goes with Mr. Cullen's walk and not with "Miss McDonald spoke".

I have transcribed the diary word for word and so if you see any funny spelling it is the way she wrote it, not a typo (I hope I didn't missed one when proof reading). Some of her misspellings were consistent, for example she wrote "to" instead of "too" and that sometimes required a second look to get the right meaning. Other mistakes didn't make a difference to the meaning such as "no" for "know", "sow" for "sew", "thouroughly" for "thoroughly", "slieghing" for "sleighing" and "burried" for "buried".

She always wrote A.M. for morning and P.M. simply means afternoon, not usually evening. Other shortforms are, most notably, Wilbt. for Wilbert and quite often an initial for a name that she has either just given or one that she writes often, such as E. for Ethel or E.H. for Edgar Huxley, H. for her aunt Harriet and I. for Irvine. Uncle Allan is always referred to as Dr.

The only other thing that I can think of that could cause a little confusion, is her reference to "home". This could mean any number of places, sometimes the farm where she lived with her parents, sometimes Gibson's home where she lived in Hillsburg. Later on it referred to the place where her mother moved to in Hillsburg, even though she never lived there and, if she was away visiting, it referred to the house she was visiting in.

And last of all, if you wonder what day an entry is for, simply look for the day she went to church and count forwards or backwards from Sunday.

This is the Edwin Awrey family home in Erin township, where mother lived with her parents, brother Wilbert and sisters, Ethel, Myrtle and Ivy. After she went to live in Hillsburgh, this is where she returned on most Sundays, until her brother married and her mother moved into Hillsburgh.

In this picture grandma Awrey is sitting by the porch with Ethel standing beside her. Wilbert is holding the horses.

When the diary begins, mother is 16 years old and working in her uncle's drugstore. His office was in a room at the back, so I suppose she had some supervision, however she must have had the sole responsibility when he was away on a call which could have been quite often.
