

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1870.

Charles has been
threshing peas splitting wood &c. Henry went out after a ghost &
brought my sister
home with him.

I have been working in the shop - making a buggy-wheel. It is my first effort at buggy-making and I am succeeding pretty well.

It is well to live in the sunshine of God's favour. And so hasten as quickly as possible from the darkness of despondency and doubt. "Cast your burden upon the Lord
and He shall sustain Thee". How precious
such promises to the burdened & weary soul.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1870.

Charles has been
threshing peas and
leaning down the straw stack. I went out to Dove & attended the adjourned Quarterly business meeting of the Circuit. It was the first meeting of the kind
that I ever attended,
in the capacity of an officer of the Church.
Well passed off very nicely.

The days pass quickly by one by one. The season allotted for our life work becomes more and more limited. We have indeed no time
to spare by the way but if we would make our life work a success it must be an unceasing and
