

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER, 27, 1870.

Look out another load of barley this morning. The price seems to be falling fast. One of the buyers offered me 68 cts per ton for my barley and I felt almost inclined to take it.

Still, has been off to the fair this day. Charley has been busy as usual.

My pathway is still at times hard with trials and temptations, almost at every step. My life is not all that I have conformed to His ways and life. And yet such is my inward desire,

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1870.

Charley went off to help move the old neighbour James Brown away to his new place in Windham.

I finished the peach picking this forenoon and this afternoon another

I went out to Dover and from there to Linco. Cause house directly home and our friend E. H.

cause from Linco we with us I left the managing of my barley into his hands last night and I see thought best to let it go. So the whole crop is sold at about 68 cts.
