Ingrowing Toe-Nail.

Good results in the treatment of ingrowing toe-nail may be obtained by dusting the affected part with a little powdered lead nitrate, after careful cleansing. A white scab forms, which must be removed on the following day; otherwise, pus is liable to collect underneath, the dusting being then repeated. The same treatment is followed from day to day as long as necessary. Liesching has been using this method for many years, with satisfactory results.—Merck's Archives.
