

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 12, 1870.

Charley has been cutting wood to-day in the woodhouse, on account of the rain.

I attended school meeting to-day. I got through with my part of the business all right, but instead of getting liberty at the close of my first term I was re-elected.

We went up to the Southwicks to-day to dinner and had a great dinner and a "musical dinner" generally. Some of the neighbours besides us were there.

To-night I attended the meeting as usual. It is certainly increasing in interest. Louisa is being converted.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 13, 1870.

Will the weather remain stormy and cold this forenoon we worked in the woods. This afternoon, as soon as we could get ready we went out to Dover so as to be at the Sea-meeting. I expected to have seen our friend Mr. L. too - night but was doomed to disappointment. I was relieved however in receiving a note from him stating ~~that~~ his reasons for not coming. He expects to be able to come in a week or so.

The Sea-meeting was a decided success. There was a large number of people there. Proceeds were about eight dollars.
