Monday December 11th

Dad went back early to plow again this morning. It began to rain during the forenoon and was pouring by noon. But he kept on till noon and got a good bit done. He said he could finish in another day. It rained hard all the after noon. I read all the after noon, and Dad worked out side opening ditch around the barn yard and such things. There is mud a foot up to the eyes more or less around the barns. Aunty came over this after noon I think to tell Enak that her sister Miss. McPherson had another boy this morning. He went back again in the rain.

Tuesday December 12th

Dad went back to plow again this morning. He plowed till one o'clock as he did not hear the whistle blow and although it rained quite a bit he rushed back and finished the field by a little after four. I went back with him this morning and put a rail across the creek as it was swollen by yesterday's rain. Then I came back and did chores and went back with the shovel but did not stay long as it began to rain. Enak went down this morning to see his sister's baby and of course he is the biggest, fattest, prettiest, good-natureddest baby ever born. It rained a bit today.
