

May 20th 1892.

Fri. 20.

Cold and rainy, commenced raining last night, and continued all night and until this evening, The rain came down in torrents last night and it rained very steady and hard also today, wind East, not settled yet. Boted thirty four Cheese today for shipment tomorrow.

Sat. 21.

Still raining, continuing all day wind East. cold tonight Mr Day presented me with a fine large pie tonight.

Sun. 22.

Cold and cloudy all day no rain here unless at night, attended Church and Sabbath School today.

Mon. 23.

Still cold raining a little by spells during the day, quite a shower this evening, The Sun appeared once today for a moment or so, the first since Thursday of last week.

May 23rd 1892.

Continued

To-day I had a little trouble, owing to the Insperator not working, I had to pull out the fire and let the steam go down, and then fill the Boiler by hand with a pail I was greatly alarmed about the milk, I had the Vat set, and could not cook it without steam, Mr D. Hey assisted me in filling the Boiler, he also was afraid the milk would be lost, still I got along alright but with the skin of my teeth, I expect the same tomorrow, but I hope not.

Mrs Cowan gave me some plums (preserved) tonight.

Milk

cool and cloudy, rained quite hard during the night, and also this morning from the west clearing off this forenoon, turning