Indications for Gastric Lavage.

The addition of antiseptics to the wash water is rarely worth while. Laxatives are most frequently useful, but even these can usually be given just as well without the use of the tube. In gastric fermentation or intestinal putrefaction, Boas likes to give magnesium salicylate in doses up to one teaspoonful three times daily. It acts at once as a laxative and as an intestinal antiseptic.—Boas; Deutsch. Med. Woch.

We washed, Joe got home from Ayler at 10:30. Eugene & John came with him to dinner. John's girls went to school but Maudie was not well enough to go in the afternoon. I guess it will be her last day at school. She stayed to see Mrs. Gay until 11:30.
