Diagnosis of Alcoholic Coma.

By firm pressure upon the supra-orbital notches, compressing the nerves, a diagnosis of alcoholism may with absolute certainty be made in a few seconds. . A case of alcoholism pure and simple will, upon the application of this pressure, immediately show very evident signs of life, and, be the coma ever so deep, the effect of the alcohol will for a short time be sufficiently removed to permit of a rapid and thorough examination. The absence of result from this pressure is a sure indication of cerebral trouble due to head injury, or disease, or of narcotic poisoning.—Clinical Memoranda, Brand & Keith.
