Diagnostic Aphorisms in Gynecology—No. 4.

If a swelling is unilateral the probabilities are against tubo-ovarian inflammation; if it is bilateral, the probabilities are against tubal pregnancy.

It is well not to assume too readily that there is a tumor only on one side merely because none can be felt on the other.

When a small, firm tumor can be felt on the left side, it is well to make a rectal examination. Such a tumor may be a carcinoma of the rectum or of the sigmoid.—Giles.

Weather

Temp.

Cold from hard last night. Sailed and to day didn't get along very fast. We was all over to the boves to night. Girls went to school.
