

sake him. This afternoon Frank went to town to get the shoes I left up there to be fixed and to see Rus Lamphins about the wind mill as some thing has gone wrong with it, I don't know just what. Dad. didn't get back to plow as there were so many chores to do and he helped me sort some of the potatoes. Frank came down to the fire car and went down town again to night. Another beautiful day.

Sunday November 11th

Quah and I drove down to church this morning leaving Dad. Frank and the baby to get dinner. Frank I think spent the morning fixing the wind mill following the instructions he got from Rus Lamphins yesterday. Aunt & Aunt Ida came over here to dinner. I went down town right after dinner and Mary and I went for a walk. She has a bad cold so didn't go to church at all today. She had an awful time with her cold yesterday but feels better today. I stayed up there till the end of the evening. Rus. They was over here to tea and Dad. has been giving me very amusing accounts of his future dreams of leaving the bank which he has always detested and finishing his medical course coming to Dover and fixing up the old home putting in the remainder of his life (he figures he would have at least fifteen years for it) in scientific research practising for the Turkey Point descendants, gratis. He was also reviewing with Dad. the pugilistic incidents of their school days dwelling with special pride and joy upon the day he licked Rev. Powell. It has been a beautiful day, very warm & not freezing to night.

Monday November 12th

Dad. and Frank both went back this morning one to plow and one to ditch. I had to go over and chase the sheep out of Jack Martin's field as they have discovered the way over and are determined to go. About nine o'clock there was a great commotion caused by the blowing of the factory, Canning factory and other whistles. We thought there must be a fire so I hurried down as far as Uncle Ward's but every thing was quiet and undisturbed by them down town. There was a flag up on the factory and Uncle Ward had no idea what had caused the row. Aunt Lucy suggested news of victory which we thought possibly the completion of the dam (which is not yet completed) was responsible but later in the day we found out that at nine o'
